SELECTED TALE.

SANDY WRIGHT AND THE ORPHAN.

Early in the month of April, 1734, three Cromarty boatmen connected with the custom house were journeying along the miserable road which at this period wound along between the capital of the highlands and that of the kingdom; they had already travelled since morning more than thirty miles through the wild highlands of Invernesshire, and were now toiling along the steep side of an uninhabited valley of Badenoch.

The gloom of evening, deepened by a chilling snow storm, was closing round them as they entered one of the wildest recesses of the valley, an immense precipitous hollow, scooped out of the hills, the wind began to howl through the cliffs and the thickening flakes of snow to beat against their faces. The house in which they were to pass the night was still ten miles away. 'It will be a terrible night lads, in the Moray Frith,' said the foremost traveller, a broad shouldered, deep chested, strong looking man, of about five feet eight; 'I would ill like to have to beat up through the drift along the rough shores of Cadboll; it was in just such a night as this, ten years ago, that old Walter Hogg went down in the Red Sally.' 'It will be as terrible a night, I'm feared, just where we are, in the black strath of Badenock,' said one of the men behind, who seemed much fatigued; 'I wish we were a' safe in the clachan.' 'Hoot, man,' said Sandy Wright, the first speaker, 'it canna now be muckle mair nor sax miles afore us, and we'll hae the tail of the gloaming for half an hour yet. But gude save us! what's that?' he exclaimed, pointing to a little figure that seemed sitting by the side of the road, about twenty yards before him; 'it's surely a fairy.' The figure rose from its seat and came up staggering, apparently from weakness, to meet them. It was a boy, scarcely more than ten years of age. 'Oh my puir boy,' said Sandy Wright, 'what can hae taken ye here in a night like this?' 'I was a going to Edinburgh to my friends,' replied the boy, 'for my mother died, and left me among the freme; but I'm tired, and cannot walk farther, and I'll be lost, I'm feared, in the youndrift.' 'That ye winna, my puir bairn, if I can help it,' said the boatmen, 'gi'es a hand of your han', grasping as he spoke the extended hand of the boy, 'dinna time heart; an' lean on me as muckle's ye can.' But the poor little fellow was already exhausted, and after a vain attempt to proceed, the boatman had to carry him on his back. The storm burst out in all its fury, and the travellers, half suffocated and more than half blinded, had to grope onwards along through the rough road, still more roughened by the snow wraths that were gathering over it; they stopped at every fiercer blast and turned their backs to the storm to recover breath, and every few yards they advanced they had to stoop to the earth to ascertain the direction of their path by catching the outline of the nearer objects between them and the sky. After many a stumble and fall, however, and many a groan and exclamation from the two boatmen behind, who were well nigh worn out, they all reached the clachan in safety about two hours after nightfall.

The inmates were seated around an immense peat fire, placed according to the custom of the country, in the middle of the floor, they made way for the travellers, and Sandy Wright drawing his seat nearer the fire, began to chafe the hands and feet of the boy, who was almost insensible from cold and fatigue. 'Bring us a mutchin o' brandy here,' said the boatman, 'to drive out the cold fra our hearts, an' as the supper canna be ready for a while yet, get me a piece for the boy; he has had a narrow escape, puir little fellow, an' maybe there's some that would miss him, lonely as he seems. Only hear how the win' roars on the gable, an' rattles at the winnocks and the door. Oh, it's awful night in the Moray Frith.'

Sandy Wright shared with the boy his supper, and his bed, and on setting out the following morning he brought him along with him; despite the remonstrances of the other boatmen, who dreaded his porving an encumbrance The story of the little fellow, though simple was very affecting. His mother, a poor widow, had lived for the five preceding years in the vicinity of Inverness, supporting herself and her boy by her skill as a seamstress. As early as his sixth year he had showed a predelection for reading, and with the anxious solicitude of a Scottish mother, she had wrought early and late to keep him at school; but her efforts were above her strength, and after a sore struggle of nearly four years she at length sunk under them.

'One day,' said the poor little boy, 'when she was sick, two neighbor women came in, and she called me to her, and told me that when she should be dead I would need go to Edingburgh, for I had no friends anywhere else.—Her own friends were there, she said, but they were poor, and coludna do muckle for me, and my father's friends were there too, and they were gran' and rich, though they wadna' own her, told me not to be feared by the way, for that Providence kent every bit o't, and that he would make folks be kind to me. I have letters to show me the way to my mother's friends when I reach the town, for I can read and write.'

Throughout he whole of the journey Sandy Wright was as a father to him. Shared with him his meals and his bed, and usually for the last half dozen miles of every stage he carried him on his back.

On reaching Queensferry, however, the boatman found that his money was well nigh expended. 'I must just try and get him across, thought he, without paying the fare. Sandy Wright does so with much difficulty. 'An now my boy,' said he, as they reached the head of what is now Leith Walk, 'I hae business to do at the custom house, an' some money to get, but I must first try and find out your friends for ye. Look at your letters, and tell me the street an' the number where they put up.'

The boy untied his little bundle, and named some place in the vicinity of the Grass-market and in a few minutes they were both walking up the High street.

'Oh, yonders my aunt,' exclaimed the boy, to a young woman who was coming down the street, 'yonder's my mother's sister,' and away he sprung to meet her. She immediately recognized and welcomed him; and he introduced the boatman to her as the kind friend who had rescued him from the snow storm and the ferryman. She related in a few words the story of the boy's parents. His father had been a dissipated young man, of good family whose follies had separated him from his friends, and the difference he rendered irreconcilable by marrying a lowborn; but industrious and virtuous young woman, who despite of her birth was deserving of a better husband. 'Two of his brothers,' said the woman, 'who are gentlemen of the law, were lately inquiring about the boy, and will, I hope, interest themselves in his behalf.' In this hope the boatman cordially joined. 'An' now, my boy, said he, as he bade him farewell, 'I have just one groat left yet, here it is, better in your pocket than wi'the gruff carle at the ferry. It'd an honest groat any how, an' I'm sure I wish it luck.'

Eighteen years elapsed before Sandy Wright again visited Edinburgh. He had quitted it a robust powerful man of forty-seven and he returned to it a grayheaded old man of sixty five. His humble fortunes too, were sadly on the wane. His son William, a gallant young fellow, who had risen in a few years on the score of merit alone from the forecastle to a lieutenancy, his headed, under Admiral Vernon, some desperate enterprise from which he never returned; and the boatman himself when on the eve of retiring on a small pension from his long service in the custom house, was dismissed without a shilling, on the charge of having connived at the escape of a smuggler. He was slightly acquainted with one of the interior clerks in the Edinburgh custom house and in the slender hope that this person might use his influence in his behalf, and that the influence might prove powerful enough to get him reinstated, he had now travelled from Cromarty to Edinburgh, a weary journey of near two hundred miles. He had visited the clerk, who had given him scarcely any encouragement, and he was now waiting for him in less than half an hour.

But more than two hours had elapsed and Sandy Wright, fatigued and melancholy, was sauntering slowly along the street musing on his altered circumstances when a gentleman who had passed him with the quick hurried step of a person engaged in business, stopped abruptly a few yards away, and returning at a much slower pace, eyed him steadfastly as he repassed. He again came forward and stood:

'Are you not Mr. Wright!' he inquired.

'My name sir, is Sandy Wright,' said the boatman, touching his bonnet. The face of the stranger glowed with pleasure and grasping him by the hand; 'Oh, my good friend Sandy Wright,' he exclaimed 'often have I inquired after you; but no one could tell me where you resided; or whether you were living or dead. Come along with me, my house is in the next square. What not remember me! but it will be ill with me when I cease to remember you. I am Hamilton, an advocate—but you will not know me as that.'

The boatman accompanied him to an elegant house in George's Square, and was ushered into a splendid apartment, where sat a young lady engaged in reading.—'Who of all the world have I found,' said the advocate to the lady; 'but good Sandy Wright who rescued me when perishing in the snow, and who was so true a friend to me when I had no friend besides.' The lady welcomed the boatman with one of her hands. 'How happy I am,' she said; 'that we should meet with you: Often has Mr. Hamilton told me of your kindness to him and regretted that he should have no opportunity of acknowledging it.' The boatman made one of his best bows; but he had no words for so fine a lady.

The advocate inquired kindly after his concerns; and was told of his dismissal from the custom house; he made application on his behalf, keeping him in the mean time in his house; and treating him with the attentions of a son, in which he was joined by his lovely wife.

A fortnight passed away very agreeably to the boatman, but at length he began to weary sadly of what he termed his little smoky cottage' and the puir auld wife; 'Just remain with us one week longer said the advocate and I shall learn in that time the result of my application; you are not now quite so active a man as when you carried me ten miles though the snow; and rightened to tall ferrymen; and so I shall secure for you a passage in one of the Leith traders. In a few days after, the advocate entered the apartment, his eyes beaming with pleasure, and a packet in his hand.

'This is from London,' he said as he handed it to his lady, 'it intimates to us that one Alexander Wright, a custom house boatman, is to retire from the service on a pension of twenty pounds per annum.'

But why dwell longer on this story!

Sandy Wright, parted from his kind friends, and returned to Cromarty; where he died in the spring of 1783. in the eighty-second year of his age. 'Folk hae aye to learn,' he used to say, 'an' for my own part, I was a saxty year auld scholar afore I kent the meaning of the verse,—'Cast thy bread on the waters and thou shalt find it after many days.'

'Well, Tom, does your girl continue to love you?'

'Yes more than ever.'

'Indeed! what evidence have you of that?'

'Why, she make me presents.'

'What she has given you lately?'

'Oh, she made me a present of my picture which I paid five dollars for before I gave it to her."

"Sisters, are you happy?" enquired a Deacon of a 'sister in the Lord.'

'Yes Deacon, I feel as though I was in Beelzebub's bosom.'

'Not in Beelzebub's?'

'Well some one of the patriarch's, I don't care which.'

'Do you keep matches here?' asked a wag of a retailer. 'Oh yes all kinds' was the reply. 'Then I'll take a trotting match.'

'Here's to Internal Improvements,' as Dobbs said when he swallowed a dose of Salts.

A GOOD WIFE.

Enough erudition;
A sweet disposition,
On charity bent.

In virtue bright shining,
Her own sex refining,
At nothing repining,
But cheerful, content.

All slander despising,
Above envy rising,
Sincerity prizing
Above low deceit.

Possessing humanity;
Sense and urbanity;
Without vanity;
Modest: discreet.

A cockney conducted the ladies to the observatory to see an eclipse of the moon. They were too late; the eclipse had over, and the ladies were disappointed. "Oh," exclaimed our hero; "don't fret: I know the astronomer very well: he is a polite man, and I am sure he will begin again."

Mrs Leslie says she knew a lady who went to make a morning call, and staid eleven years.

Some one calls the time of squalling the girls' hands 'the palmy season of life.'

EDUCATION,

In tracing the Church and State party through all their insiduous windings, we had reached the Western counties of Pennsylvania, and were suddenly called away, and marking the copy to be set up, it was not done; therefore we humbly crave the pardon of our friends and patrons.

Washington and Jefferson colleges in Pa. are but a few miles apart, we came to Washington college first, but it had been broken up or suspended; and Mr. Wiley, the President, was preparing to leave the place; not being able to do any good for himself or the students.

Mr. Brown an aged and amiable man, as we discovered subsequently with Mr. Wiley, were treated savagely by the trustees, to whom they and the professors were compelled to yield implicit obedience.* Mr. Wiley being a young, gay, lively man, of sound learning, intimated to us [after our disclosure to him of the prostration of the western University,] "that he could do more good in any other place," that he was "aware of the fate of the University," and with a pleasant smile said, "I am sorry for Pennsylvania Mrs. R.—fine State, but I shall quit the concern."

It was not so with President Brown of the Jefferson college, to be sure he was likewise about resigning the chair, but not until he had made every effort in the compass of human power, to oppose the inroads of tyranny and abuse into the institution, he would "strive no longer. Reduced as to a shadow as you madam may see, it is time to think of spending my closing days in ease and quiet."

Rev. Mr. B. was quite feeble and pale, and spoke like a true christian, and with all the modest sincerity that bespoke a man of probity and refinement.

THE STUDENTS.

This and Dickenson college, with the exception of common schools, are the only seminaries at which we could get a sight of the Students. But alas! for the sight. It is one that we hope never to see again, and the surprise was that they looked as well as they did, they were mere shadows, the bodies thin and dwarfish, reminds one of the stories we hear of the factory children in Europe. But the intellect was good.

But since these rules were published, they have turned Jefferson into a complete missionary school, and the students have no time for any other species of learning. For instance, they must attend missionary, tract, and bible societies, three, perhaps more, nights in the week, and sing and pray. The remaining nights, they must go from house to house, and distribute a certain number of tracts, call on all the females, [fine business for young men,] to collect donations, &c. Every Sunday morning they must repeat so many chapters of the bible, they must attend preaching three times every Sunday, winter and summer; and as if this were not enough to exhaust the time and spirits of the students, they receive a tract every Sunday, if we recollect, which they must commit to memory, and not only so, but lecture on and define it, they must contribute a certain sum at stated periods for the spread of the gospel!! As if these regulations were not sufficiently degrading, they were marked on the margin for the press: one was "The reading of tracts strictly enjoined!" This appears to be the science of Jefferson.

This tyranny over the mind is the great and ruling object of this dangerous party, the Church and State, which they pursue till they subdue the will, the power, and the knowledge of the rising generation to think for themselves, if they even dare to do so, which they dare not.

Dickenson was worse still—it had become so abandonedly infamous that the most horrid crimes was perpetrated behind the [great massy Church] in open day.

Thank God we were the means of putting an end to this wickedness at both these colleges.

The poor students—bits of mere boys, told us the truth with tears in their eyes, how shamefully they were used by beastly women, and with the tears streaming said, "Mrs. R. if you only knew how we suffer; not one cent of pocket money are we allowed to keep, to buy any little thing we want, not even an apple; they take it to buy tracts."

There is no such thing now, but heaven knows their power in every school where the free soil aims at the downfall of the constitution, and the freedom of civil and religious rights.

REV. Ms. EASTMAN & HIS FRIENDS OF THE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY—TRACT COMMITTEE.

This gentleman and his friends whom we referred to in our comments upon the Pittsburg Spectator—whether they stepped forward voluntarily or not, seem to have been well schooled in the art of perfidy and fraud.

We have read and heard accounts of the dexterity of pick-pockets, pick-locks, body-snatches, and all the lower class of crime, but a better studied, or better founded plot to rob the government out of its revenue, and cheat the people out of their souls and senses was never formed; no doubt but government is some millions the loser by these frauds, and that much of it was effected before it was made known to the public.

We have published all these things heretofore, but since the Church and State party have broken off from the old side [as it pretends,] and a new name—"Free Soil," and insist upon it that money and tracts is gospel, which costs as much to spread as it would to spread hay on the ocean. There is the census to take the country to lay off into school and tract districts; next—follow the tracts, and the collectors, three classes follow them; to these add the man of books with the confidential columns, viz. bad worse, worse and last, but not least, as it appears by the auther of the Pastoral letter, the expenses of an army to pay, which is coming over the Atlantic to assist their brethren, and several alterations besides. We find it necessary to go back to the commencement, to show that though they change names they do not change plots.

But we come at once to the great plot itself, that of blowing up the Mississippi Valley from New Orleans at least to the Kentucky line, to which end their trained bands, male and female have been taking lessons under the education corps.*

"Communication from the post office at Helena, A. T.
To the Editor.

Sir—Will you be pleased to give this communication a place in your next paper.

New York, February 16, 1834.

Dear Sir, By return of mail you will confer a favor by sending to us the names of the Ministers of the Gospel of different denominations, Exhorters, Elders, Deacons, and the names of several influential, public spirited and benevolent persons, that we may transmit to your office, for each name you furnish us, one number of a paper containing a circular we wish to send through the State.

Very respectfully yours,
J. N. BOLLES,
J. A. WHITEMARSH,
J. L. BURROWS.

P. S. Please direct your answer to J. N. Bolles, 150 Nassau street, New York city.

On the back or outside of the above it has this address, 'P. M. Helena, Phillips Co. Ar. T.'

To Messrs. Bolles, Whitemarsh, and Burrows.

Gentlemen:—I have viewed and reviewed, considered, and re-considered the above card, and for the soul of me I cannot determine what it really means, nor what can be your object. If you are in reality cross-bearing Christians according to your intimation—determined to make every thing subservient to your notions of the christian duties of man—then are you the more to be feared, inasmuch as you are aiming at such a long pull, strong pull, and to pull 'the ministers of the gospel of different denominations, Exhorters, Elders, Deacons, and several influential, public spirited and benevolent persons' all together. Let me ask you in candor, Do you really mean to send through the United States, [for you know we are here in a territorial form of government] a paper containing a CIRCULAR! What does that circular contain, gentlemen, that you wish to send through the United States? It may be some pious treason, for aught I know; and to be candid with you, I feel confident that it is an attempt to subvert our Religious Liberty. Is it not an appeal to fanaticism, to rally every where and take us by surprise. To me it has that appearance. Only look at it! You want the Post Masters every where to send you the names of 'the Ministers of the Gospel of different denominations."

'Nothing in the world gentlemen, is wanting in that member of the sentence but the definite article, which I make no doubt you intend to have understood, for it is not by any means bad grammar as it stands. Let me supply it and then see how it will read. 'You will confer a favor by sending to us the names of the Ministers of the Gospel of THE different denominations.' This, gentlemen, you see sweeps all before it. Then it is the names of the ministers of all the denominations, yes, and the Exhorters, Elders, Deacons, influential, public spirited and benevolent persons of all the denominations that you wish me to send the names of.

Gentlemen, it seems to me that if you had fully considered what you were doing you would not have sent such a card to the Post Masters, as it is reasonable to presume you have done throughout the United States. The Post offices were increased at a ratio of about 362 in the four years ending 31st Dec. 1830. Take that for the ratio and add thrice 362 which is 1086 to 8450, which was the aggregate at that time, and we should have had 9536 Post offices for you to send the above card to. For the sake of doing your pious treason full justice, say that 1536 of these offices were so remote that you did not think fit to send your card to the 'P. M.s" at them, still there are 8000 to whom it is reasonable to presume that you have sent the card. The postage on them cannot amount to less than 20 cents on an average, which makes the sum of one thousand six hundred dollars! Look at it gentlemen One thousand six hundred dollars you have defrauded the government out of in your attempt to subvert our Religious Liberty, and in all probability, to unite the Church and State.

Gentlemen, look at this matter—the American people are not prepared to become the slaves of fanaticism any more than they are to monarchy—they love their Civil and Religious liberty too well to be cajoled out of it by any 'Circular' you can transmit. Again. You are but one small branch of the great combination that is formed under the different but imposing names—some Temperance, some Sunday school, some Tract, some Bible, some Missionary, some Charity, and very many Abolition, Emancipation, Colonization Societies—all these engaged at the good work doing God service by their multefarious efforts to bring us into bondage.

As to the names you wish sent, thank God we have a number of good pious christian preachers who are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, and they preach Christ Jesus and him crucified to sinners, but I confess I am greatly deceived in them if they would countenance your treasonable circular.'

"Nay they glory in the freedom of our institutions, and manifest no disposition to do any thing that might subvert our Liberty—they are sober orderly men, and use their best endeavors to influence the will of their fellow men by convincing their judgment of the necessity of faith, hope, and charity, without caring anything about what may be called the immaterialities, they make no attempts at your fanatical, overrighteous zeal, to compel men to come in. we have also 'Exhorters, Elders, Deacons &c.' but none of whom do I believe will enter into your pious treason. We have "influential men, public spirited,' yes and 'benevolent persons,' but none of whom will surrender their Religious Liberty at the shrine of fanticism. But again, the Ministers of ALL the different denominations, as well as the various other pious persons to whom you refer, renders your wish to act upon the whole christian order of men! It cannot be that you design any good. If you are Methodists, call for their names only, and I will think better of it If you are Baptists, call for theirs; if Cumberland Presbyterians, call for theirs, if Roman Catholics, call for theirs. Of all these we have many pious christians——they are however all Patriots and I am full convinced will not enter into any of your Church and State union projects, nor any other measure that may have tendency towards subverting our Liberty.—I need scarce remark that an answer from myself and all the other P. M.s, would in all probability defraud the government out of the same sum your card has done. Look at it! $1,600! that in all $3,200 for a beginning then come your pious treasonable Circular, to say at least 20 persons at each Post Office on an average; that will be 30 cents to each post office Then say Pious Treason to 8000 Post office, 30 cts each, $2,400
To this add the fraud of your card $3 200
Total fraud on the Post office, $5.600
To this sum add
For Bible Societies the sum of $5,600
For Missionary societies to Indians, " " " 5,600
For tract Societies, " " " 5,600
For Temperance Societies, 5,600
For Sunday school societies, 5,600
For Abolition societies, 5,600
For Emancipation societies, 5,600
For Colonization societies, 5,600
For foreign missionary societies, 5,600
For all other societies of Deaf, Dumb, Lame, Halt, blind; infant 10'000
Total; . . . $66,000

Now gentlemen; you know those figures will not lie, however you may get out of this palpable fraud. That you may not find the P. M.s generally subservient to your object, I most sincerely hope."

(Ballance in next paper.)

I am gentlemen, your most unwavering opponent,

NOTE.—This gentleman [Steele] is worth his weight in gold. It is a great pity we have not a few such men in Congress.

☞Having some repairs to make in the Office, no paper will issue from it next week.

Do not rely on apparance. We were informed yesterday, by a person who stated it as a fact on the landing of the steamship Falcon, an individual came on shore without hat, coat or boots. After looking around him for some time, with a free and easy, independent kind of an air, he called to a drayman and requested him to take charge of a pair of saddle bags, which were on board the vessel and convey them to Hewlett's. With some hesitation the drayman complied with his request, but on attempting to lift the saddle-bags found he was unable to be without assistance. The fact was, that they contained $40,000 in gold, which the coatless and bootless man had brought with him from California. We will guarantee that his costume to-day would not disgrace an haibture of Broadway. Truly, appearances are fallacious and deceptive.—N. O. Picayune.

THE FRIEND OF YOUTH
A Monthly Newspaper.

Mrs. MARGARET L. BAILEY, Editor

The Friend of Youth will be issnd on the first of every mounth in quarto form, eight pages on fine paper, in neat new type, and with tasteful embellishments.

Our object will be to make the paper an attractive companion for youth. While we please, we shall also aim to form their tastes. In addition to agreeable Stories, Lessons on Natural History, Descriptions of Natural Scenery, Sketches of Travel, and Notices of New Books for children, we shall converse, with them, in languag adapted to their comprehension, about the important events of the present era. We know this is not usually done in such publications, but we think we do not mistake the taste or capacity of young people, when we suppose them to feel some interest in the world they live in, beyond the nursery, the school-room, and the play-ground. It shall also be our care to interest them on all great subjects connected with the well being of mankind. Freedom, Peace, and Temperence, shall receive our weep with the suffering, we hope to awaken in them a generous abhorrence of all wrong, and and an earnest love and reverence for all that is just and pure, and while thus inculcating the lessons of love to man, we can not forget the supreme obligations due to the great Father and Benefactor of all.

We hope to succeed in adapting our paper to all ages of youth, so that while the elder brothers and sisters have a full share of our attention, the little ones shall not be forgotton. They are our special favorites, and shall be cared for accordingly.

To secure variety of entertainment, we have engaged as regular contributors to our columns, several well-known and distinguished writers, peculiarly qualified to minister to the wants of Youth. Among them, we are at liberty to name—T. S. Arthur and Emma D. E. N. Southworth. In short we hope to make the paper just such a "Friend" as young people will be glad to see, and sorry to part with.

As this Prospectus may reach many of the former friends and patrons of the 'Youth's Monthly Visiter,' a paper which we established and edited for nearly three years at Cincinnati, we cannot forbear expressing the great pleasure it will give us to renew our former intercourse with them. The little children who then received the 'Visiter' as a welcome guest, are now almost grown up men and women. But they will perhaps find some little brother or sister or cousin to whom they may introduce us as an old friend.

The first number will be issued on the first of November.

The terms will be—fifty cents a year for a single copy, five copies for $2, or every person forwarding us four names, with two dollars, shall be entitled to one copy gratis.

It is desirable that the names of subscribers be sent in with as little delay as possible. All communications must be addressed to—

DR TOWNSEND'S SARSAPARILLA.

Most extraordinary Medicine in the world

This Extract is put in quart bottles. It is six times cheaper, pleasanter, and warranted superior to any sold. It cured diseases, without vomting, purging, sickening, or deblitating the patient.

The great beauty and superiority of this Sarsaparilla over all other remedies is, while it eradicates disease, it invigorates the body.

IT HAS PERFORMED MORE THAN 15.000 CURES THIS YEAR.

1,000 cures of Rheumatism.
1,000 cures of Dyspepsia.
2,500 cures of General Debility and Want of Nervous Energy.

30,000 Female Complaints, and over 7,000 cures of Diseases of the Blood viz:

Ulcers, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, pimples on the face, &c., together with neroas cases of consumption liver com p ain spleen affections, &c! This, we are aware, must appear incredible, but we have letters from physicians and our agents from all parts of the United States informing us of extraordinary cures. R Van Buskirk, Esq., one of the most respectable druggists in Newark, New Jersey, informs us that he can refer to more than one hundred and fifty cases in that place alone. There are thousands of cases in the city of N. York which we will refer to with pleasure, and to men of character well known.

OPINIONS OF PHYSICIANS.

Dr. Townsend is almost daily receiving orders from physicians in different parts of the Union.

This is to certify that we, the undersigned physicians of the city of Albany, have ein numerous cases prescribed Dr. Townsend's Sarsaparilla and beleive to be one of the mato valuble preparations of Sarparilla in the Market.

P H. Puling, M. D. R. B. Briggs, M. D.
P E. Elmendorf, M. D.
Albany, April 1, 1845.

The following is from one of the most respectable physicians on Long Island:

GREENPORT July 19, 1846.

DR. TOWNSENDS—Dear Sir—it is with satisfaction that I have recently witnessed, in several cases the most beneficial results from your extract of Sarsaparilla. Be engaged in the practice of medicine, I have prescribed it in several cases, and never without benefit. In the removal of diseases arrising from a deranged state of the disgestive orvans, jaundice, &c if far exceeds any thing of the kind ever offered to the public, You will please send me two dozen, &c.

Respectfully yours,
C, S, PRESTON, M D.

UNITED STATES OFFICER.

Capt G W Mclean, Member of the Legislature, and late of the U. S. Navy; has kindly sent us the following certificate. It tells its own story.

RAHWAY Jan. 25 1847.

A year since I was taken with the influenza and my whole system left in a debilitated state. I was induced to try Dr. Townsend's Sarsadpolla,

B after taking two or three bottles, I was very much relieved, and attributed it entirely to the said Sarsaparilla. I have continued taking it, and that I improve every day. I believe it saved my life, and would not be without it under any consideration.

G W. McLEAN.

SCROFULA CURED:

This certificate conclusively proves that this Sarsaparilla has perfect control over the most obstinate diseases of the blood. Three persons cured in one house is unprecedented,

THREE CHILDREN.

DR. TOWNSEND—Dear Sir, I have the pleasure to inform you that three of my children have been cured of the scrofula by the use of your excellent medecine. They were aflicted very severely with bad sores; having takan only four bottles; it took them away, for which I feel myself under deep obligation.

yours respectfully,
ISAAC W. CRAIN, 108 Woost

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

A MAMMOTH PAPER.

DEVOTED TO MORALITY, PURE LITERATURE, FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC NEWS, AGRICULTURE, SCIENCE, ART AND AMUSEMENT.

This paper contains from one-fourth to one half more than the generality of two Dollar city weeklies.

The Proprietors of the SATURDAY EVENING POST return their cincere thanks to their friends and the public for the patronage extended to them since the enlargement of their paper, and respectfully solicit a continuance of the same. The belief expressed in their last Prospectus, that the POST is destined to take its stand at the very head of the weekly press, is fast becoming realized. The reason of this is in a great degree, to be found in the stand the POST has always taken against the immoral literature of the day. The public have felt, in the language of the North American and United States Gazette, of this city, that "The Post has done much towards correcting the taste of the newspaper reading public."

TERMS.

The terms to single subscribers are 2,00 dols per annum, in advance, 3,00, if not paid in advance. For five dollars in advance, one copy will be sent three years.

TERMS TO CLUBS.

In order to accommodate the large number who wish to take a first class paper, but mistakingly think they cannot afford it, we continue the following low terms for Clubs—to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office:

4 COPIES,

Three Copies of the Saturday Evening Post and two of the Ladies Garland for five dollars

Two Copies of the Saturday Evening Post, and two of the Fountain, (containing 252 pages of original letter prees, and 8 of Sartains best Magazine engraving,) for four dollars.

ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

The Money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. Subscriptions may be sent at our risk (when the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount.) Address,

DEACON & PETERSON, No. 66 South third Street, Philadelphia.

☞ Editors coppying the above, or who will give a fair notice of the paper [we ask not that it shall be praised, but be noticed] in their editorial columns, shall be entitled to an exchange. Such as are lready entitled to an exchange for the current year, shall receive our thanks.

N. B.—Any person desirous of recieving a copy of the Post, as a sample, can be accommodated by notifying the Publishers by letter, post paid.

THE GLOBE,

Congressional, Agricultural, and Literary Newspaper.

The Editors of the Congressional Globe propose a new publication. To deserve the patronage which Congress has accorded to their reports of its debates, in receiving and making the Globe the official register, they intend to add promptitude to whatever merit has hitherto recommended the work. They will publish a Daily Globe, to record the proceedings and debates as they occur, and a Congressional Globe periodically as heretofore, embodying the reports of Congress separate from the miscellaneous matter which will accompany them in the daily print. To fill the sheet of the daily newspaper, it is designed to gather the news from all quarters, and complete the contents by drawing from every source whatever may be of most interest among literary novelties, and of greatest utility in science, art, or agriculture. For material the leading journals and periodicals of France and Great Britain, treating of such subjects will be consulted and it is hoped, advantageously used. Original essays, especially on topics connected with agriculture, will be obtained from the most enlightened land practical men of our country.

The Globe as a newspaper, and as a vehicle of information and amusement in other respects will be under the charge of Francis P. Blair and James C. Pickett. The Congressional department and business concerns of the paper will be under the management of John C. Rives. The public are familiar with Blair and Rives as connected with the press. In introducing Mr Pickett as one of the concern they will be allowed to say a few words of him. He is a gentleman favorably known to the Government, for the talent and judgment which distinguished his diplomatic service while connected with the mission to Quito, and more recently when Charge d'Affaires to Peru. From him mainly the Globe will derive the selections and translations from the foreign continental journals and periodicals, the comments on them and the other literary articles which will be found among its chief attractions. F. P. Blair will give his attention principally to the English periodicals.

The Globe will be published daily during the session of Congress and weekly the balance of the year and will undergo distribution in the form of a Weekly Globe, a Congressional Globe and Appendix.

The Weekly Globe will contain agricultural and miscellaneous articles.

The Congressional Globe will embody as it has done for the last sixteen years. Congressional proceedings and debates exclusively:

The Appendix will embrace the revised speeches separately and the messages of the President of the United States and the reports of the Heads of the Executive Departments.

The Congressional Globe and appendix will be published as fast as the proceedings of Congress will make a number Subscribers may expect one number of each a week during the first four weeks of a session and two or three numbers of each a week afterwards, until the end of the session.

Complete indexes to the Congressional Globe and appendix, will be sent to subscribers soon after Congress adjourns.

TERMS.

For one copy of the Daily Globe daily during the session of Congress, and weekly during the recess, a year, $5 00

For one copy of the Weekly Globe one year, 2 00

For one copy of the Congressional Globe during the present session, if subscribed for before the first of January, 1 00

For one coppy of the Appendix during the present session, if subscribed for before the first of January, 1 00

For six copies of either the Congressional Globe or the appendix, or part of both, 5 00

The subscription for the Congressional Gobe or the Appendix after the 10th of January will be $4 50. The original price of one dollar does not pay the expense of the publications in consequence of the great increase of matter published.

BETTER AND CHEAPER THAN EVER !!!

☞ NEVER IN THE REAR ☜

A NEW PAPER MAMMOTH SIZE

Reduced Price, Increased Beauty.

AND AUGMENTED INTEREST!!

The undersigned having purchased the disputed claim on the old Saturday Courier, and being determined not to be surpassed in the competition among the press For popularity beauty and excellence, will now combine the unrivaled and unapproachable material of the old paper, with the renewed energy enterprise novelty and spirit of a new one and will issue, on the 11th day of March, 1848 in the city of Philadelphia the first number of a new weekly Newspaper, of the very first and largest class, entitled

M'MAKIN'S MODEL,
AMERICAN COURIER

Published and edited by ANDREW M'MAKIN now editor of the Saturday Courier,

Assisted by a gentleman, universally acknowledged as one of the most talented and popular writers of the age.

The farmers Department, of the Courier will be edited. It is expected, by the most distinguished Agriculturist in the united States whose name will be announced as soon as the pending negotiations are contempleted.

THE AMERICAN COURIER

Will contain the amount of eight more columns of matter than does the "Saturday Courier," and it will be conducted strictly on the CASH PRINCIPEL, will, with all its Artistic and literary improvements, be offered at a much reduced price to "Clubs,"

The editor of the American courier feels confident that not a pledge will be required of time to the character of the new paper, other than that it will be a family newspaper, neueral in politics and religion; chaste in morality and moderate but elevated in tone and sentiment. His long connection with the "Saturday courier,"—which, under at least his co editorship, reached the largest similar circulation in the world,—will be ample pledge that every intelligent and respectable family in the land may safely confide in his taste, judgment and energy, with the aid of comparatively unlimited capital, to cater for their mental appetite

The contents of the American Courier.

Among the standard features of the american courier, will be—a new series of 'Washington Legends,' by George Lippard, esq. The 'portrait Gallery' of poets and their poetry—each Biography Illustrated, Original domestic tales, by the most distinguished writers of the day. Original essays, sketches, poems, and letters on useful and important subjects. Engraved views of persons, scenes and things of interest Select tales from the best english and american authors. The "Modern Spectator, in wich it will be designed to

"eye nature's walk, shoot Folly as it flies and catch the manners living as they rise
Together with every useful novelty that ingenuity, skill and talent can advise.

THE FARMERS DEPARTMENT will immediately take and maintain an originality and value not approachable by any family journal in the land the editor having engaged several writers of known and acknowledged ability to furnish practical articles on model farming.

The markets, news and gossip of the day will be objects of special care in detail, and nothing will be left undone by mind or money.

TO THE FRIENDS OF "THE PLOUGH LOOM, AND ANVIL."

POPULAR as this journal is, and so far successful beyond any theretofore established, its income is yet something short of paying its own expenses, leaving the editors to live on air or hope, neither of which is very substantial deit. Now, as we believe that we have not a friend who would willingly see the man want bread who has been more than thirty years teaching others how to make it, we at once frankly solicit our present patrons to use their influence to average one more subscriber each, and then "the Plough, the Loom, and the Anvil," and those who are working at it, will be doing what is commonly called a safe bussiness, and not until then. We are truly sorry to be under the necesity of making this appeal, for, could we afford it, we would rejoice, as on past occasions. to show that we would most willingly work as hard, gratuitously for the great industrial interests of the country, as we are now doing in the hope of at least a scanty support.

P. S. We shall not fail to note the favor if any kind brother Editor should give this a place in his paper to help along one of the oldest of the fraternity.

TERMS of the PLOUGH, LOOM, and ANVIL, $10 for five subscribers, $5 for two, and $3 for one, or $5 for two years subscription, 64 pages a month.
